AMERICAN SOCIETY OF WORKERS COMP PROFESSIONALS, INC.

About AMCOMP

The American Society of Workers Comp Professionals, Inc., (AMCOMP) is a not-for-profit Corporation dedicated to professional excellence in the field of workers' compensation. In 1999, AMCOMP formed to educate and certify workers compensation professionals and to raise the professional standards of practice in the field. One year later, AMCOMP began to flesh out a comprehensive education program that would help to achieve the educational goals the Association set forth.

The AMCOMP Certified Workers Compensation Professional ("WCP") designation is intended to develop a basic foundation of knowledge of the various aspects of workers compensation so that one who has completed the program will have a better understanding and appreciation of how the various pieces (i.e. claims, risk management, pricing, etc.) work together. The program is intended to create a foundation of knowledge – both from the historical and the future perspectives – that will ensure a comprehensive level of understanding for the individual who has completed the program.

To help ensure appropriate representation and viewpoints in the field of workers compensation, the Board of Directors includes leading distinguished professionals. The AMCOMP Board of Directors acts as an insurance information resource for issues that arise and affect the field of workers' compensation.
